

Children and adults alike are being desensitized to violence by all of the violent programming on television. Not only physical violence but verbal violence are being pushed into the minds of children of all ages. It is becoming more difficult to discern what is fantasy and what is reality and what is acceptable conduct and what is not acceptable. Stricter guidelines must be put in place to safeguard our children and consequently our nation against violent broadcasts.